CHILD CARE PROVIDERS:

Steps to Licensure

1 Complete pre-application training

Most program directors need a graduate degree and 6 months of experience or a bachelors with a year of experience in childcare, or extensive experience without a degree.

2 Register for pre-license orientation

Contact your local Office of Child Care Health and Safety. You'll learn some basic standards, such as staff to child ratios, which depend on child age.

3 Create a functional design plan

This is your layout for the Child Care Center. You'll need 35 square feet of usable floor space per child, meaning all floor space minus furniture.

4 Complete initial application

You'll need over a dozen documents, including proof of qualifications, proof of insurance coverage, an annual operating budget, and copies of policies and procedures.

Opening or expanding a new Child Care Center means dealing with a lot of regulations. For more information, go to: www.childcare.virginia.gov/providers
